DIL 4.0 out of 5 stars Replaced Carbon Brushes and reset the system The Hardest Part very difficult to find out how, like the enigma code of Bosch. Repeat if not successful at first attempt. NOTE to fit the brushes irrespective of model you will have to remove the motor first as it is impossible to fit and compress the Carbon Brush Springs otherwise. Pressing the clip spring down on the motor to push them in and clip in is tricky. make sure right way round But actually a job most can do with little knowledge. Machine restarted and away it went with the motor slotted back in to machine. Old carbon brushes were only a few mm long so, not connecting to motor anymore. Considering ten years old not surprising really. Now fully working with no issues. Good instructions on motor removal and brush fitting on line. Seem to be a good replacement for my Bosch logix washer.

Running almost non stop since New Year 2018, They are too long so I had to cut them down. It had a bit of a squeal to start with as they reformed to the correct shape but now its running perfectly. I previously bought some cheaper ones from an auction site but they fell to piece on installation very annoying these are good quality and work well. Check your brushes They will wear out eventually but its possible to check and replace them yourself fairly easily and save a few quid. Take a look on YouTube for instructions on how to do it. Its really not that hard. These brushes did the trick for me. These original brushes were CHEAPER and with FASTER delivery than the generics for sale on the big spares websites. Once I put them in I was back up and running. Clean clothes. Job done. I did sand down the side edges a little, as it was a little tight in the holder, to allow them to move more easily as they wear to keep contact with the motor. These replacement motor brushes saved the day when the washing machine died. Fitted perfectly, wife happy, domestic bliss. Warrior193. Please try again. Can you please advise. Verified Hiya, F18 would indicate a blocked or faulty drain pump. Drain off the water in the machine if any by lowering the drain hose into a wash basin, keep repeating this until youve got as much water as possible out. Lay a towel at the front of the machine or a very low tray and take out the filter. Remove any debris in there that may be blocking the pump. If this doesnt resolve it, unplug the appliance and strip out the drain pump just follow the drain hose back into the machine to find it and check the hoses and the pump for a blockage. Finally, check that the pump isnt open circuit using a multimeter. Hope this helps.

Thanks Ask Your Own UK Appliance Question Customer reply replied 11 years ago Thanks FredCould it be debris in the pump that is stoipping me from removing thisYou could remove the pump and filter housing to try and get the debris out from the filter through the inlet pipe. Tip the machine back about 45 degrees after unplugging it from the wall socket. If there are screws holding the filter housing in place, remove these. Remove any screws or bolts holding the pump body in place, Drop the assembly through the bottom of the machine and remove the sump to pump hose from the filter housing. This diagram may help. Either the latch is not moving enough or the handle was only just moving the latch when I tested it, and has now given up the ghost. Any way to get the door open from the outside. I have tried from every direction and I dont think I can do it that way, unless there is a manual release which I cant find. If not, how can I release it from the inside.

I popped the lid off and can just get my fingers onto the interlock but cant figure out how to release it. Do I actually need to remove it. And if so what is the best approach. Thanks A very frustrated Paul! Get the machine to unlock it for you i.e. select the shortest program which is Drain and runs for just 1 minute and listen for the door to unlock the load click when the program is finished. Let me know if this does the trick. Thanks fo your suggestion though. Any further thoughts About the only way to get it open now is to use a strong piece of twine, fishing line, wire, etc. Is the aim to get the wire to go through the seal and over the bulge of the door glass Then pull both ends equally hard towards the door hinge. Ive tried this for about 15 minutes with no luck. Then I glance at the old door and notice that the catch springs towards the hinge, and therefore needs to be moved away from the hinge to open. I hink my string approach, which i think did connect with the latch due to the angle of the string, would be pulling the latch towards the hinge, so tighter shut. What am i missing Cheers Open this, it hinges downward and can then be pulled off the machine completely. Inside there on the right hand side you should see a red tag hanging down. This is the emergency door release tag and needs to be pulled down pliers needed, page 13 of the users manual. You can create your listing free at DIYnot Local. Hold times are long.
